Company description:

SATOV is a midsized and growing management consulting firm. The firm is rooted in applying the core strategy analytical methodologies to midmarket firms with a hands-on, operational style and an implementation based approach.

SATOV's differentiation lies in its ability to bring together a client's corporate strategy, customer strategy and operations strategy, which is critical for midmarket firms who need to purchase integrated and affordable strategy advice. The firm has deep implementation capabilities from both a program and people management perspective to ensure the strategy is successfully implemented.

Clients include Research in Motion, Loyalty One, Rogers Communications, Zellers, Shopper's Drug Mart and Capital One, to name a few. SATOV is a profitable and acquisitive firm with exciting plans for the future. It presents its employees with more rapid career advancement opportunities than larger consulting firms with more rigid development tracks. SATOV offers a fun, flexible and entrepreneurial culture. While spending time on client sites is highly valued, many of the firm's clients are in the GTA. For out of town engagements, time at client sites is encouraged but a four day model is not presumed and often not necessary. The collegial, collaborative and tight-knit team environment means that company off-sites are focused on celebrating wins and the hard work of everyone in the firm.

Position:

Given the nature of our firm, the role could vary greatly depending on staffing levels and project requirements. Consultants will work under the guidance of a case team leader in multiple areas that could include research, modeling and managing portions of a case including client facing roles. Given that we promote a hands-on approach, consultants at all levels participate in the analysis and recommendation development phase leading to client presentations. Consultants will work within the case team to deliver recommendations and support beyond client expectations.
